“ I remember Ben and I grew up together. We had the same birthday and the same interest for years and years. Even when we were going our separate ways I always held him in my heart. I am extremely saddened to learn of the loss the Gower family and the rest of world had to endure in August of 2016.

“ It has been many, many years since I have seen any of you. Ben was maybe 5 or so when I knew him and that is the picture I hold in my heart for you all, just pure innocence, joy and a little mischief, his sweet face and little giggle. Linda the last time I saw you you hinted that Ben was facing his own individualized struggles and I know all of your hearts are torn to pieces by losing him. I am so sorry. I hold you all in prayer and send my love.

“ Donnie and Linda, I am so very sad for you right now. The strength you will need to get through this is the Good Lord above. You are still family to me. I didn't know Benjamin like I did the other boys but You can see the twinkle in his eyes that shows so much love. I am thinking of you all during this rough times. Still care for you both deeply. I am in the phone book if you need anything at all.

Ben was like a brother to me. I lived across the street from him on Birchwood Bay Rd. for a few years and I would go hang out at his place every single day. He was one of the kindest most giving people I've ever met (although I didn't like the way he would talk to his mama sometimes, but he was a little special, anyways I digress), he helped me thru a really rocky point in my life and always knew how to cheer me up. When I first heard about what happened to Ben I did not believe the person who told me. It hit me pretty hard when I realised they weren't joking, and I honestly started crying (which if you knew me well you'd know I don't ever cry about anything), and I just feel like if him and I hadn't have drifted apart that maybe I could have been there for him maybe be a voice of reason like I had been so many times in the reason. I just miss my friend Ben so much, he was really the only true friend I had in this world. Ben and Rowdy. There will never be another person like Ben, he truly was a unique character. But he will be forever missed, and my heart goes out to the Gower family. God Bless.
