“ My precious childhood friend. I am loss for words that your are gone. My hearth breaks. Even though we were not able to see each other over the years. We always stayed in touch . I have so many wonderful memories of you, playing with cats and dressing them up and taking them for a walks in the stroller to being maid of honor for my wedding. One of my favorites memories was our trip to Colorado where we pitched tent and slept in the mountains. We were so cold that night. We slept with hot rocks from our campfire. Those wonderful memories will be with me forever. You are an angel and wonderful person. Was loved by many and will be deeply missed. RIP my friend till we meet again . Love Susie

“ There are many bad things one can say about Facebook but a huge joy was that it brought Char and me back in contact after nearly 40 years. During our senior year at Tosa West High, she was right next to my locker. It was my first (and last) year there and I was one of two African Americans.

It was a difficult time with mixed feelings for many, especially while the first airing of the Roots mini-series came on TV. Charlotte never cared about race and we hit it off so well because we were both off "the deep end of the peer." That same irreverence hadn't changed in all the years we were apart.

Sincerest condolences to her family. R.I.P. Charlotte.

“ Many years ago, I first met Char as my mom and me pushed my brother's stroller down our street. We became fast friends, and I spent many hours with Char and her loving grandparents and mom who always treated me like family.

Char was always busy with some new project, and I was her ready accomplice. I remember putting together some theatrical production in her basement, and I accidentally broke a decorative ceramic phone of her grandmother's. I was terrified, but Char took the rap for it, or the hairbrush, as it were. She was that kind of person...

Her love of animals goes way back as well, and she had cats we loved to care for and play with. Always one for a good party, Char had a birthday party for our cats and friends in her backyard, with hats and catfood cake. We even had our picture in the local paper!

Char carried these same traits into her adult life, and became a wonderful mother and friend to all, a champion for animals, and an energetic entrepreneur. The world will be a little bit dimmer place without her, but those lucky enough to have known her will always carry her love and light in their hearts.

“ Today Dan and I our family say farewell to a dear friend and cousin, Charlotte Marie Rhoda.

Char, you touched so many lives with your generous spirit and kindness. All of us are richer for knowing you and are grateful for the time we had with you. You fought a long and difficult battle with strength and grace. Even near the end your compassion for others never faltered. We will always miss you and we take comfort that you are in a better place and free of pain. Although you have left us, you have given us all wonderful lives and memories just for knowing you. There will be times when we glance into the sky or look into the shimmering water and think of you and smile.

Farewell, sweet Charlotte.

David & Marie, I was saddened to hear of your mom's passing. I knew here to be an energetic, caring, and lively young woman. By all accounts, she continued to be her whole life. May she now rest in God's peace.
