“ Debra and I never met in person, although we became fast friends by means through a mutual friend via Facebook. We talked a few times on the phone about making time to meet each other in person, unfortunately we both suffered from chronic illness and were never able to officially meet.....We were supportive of all things through our correspondences together. I considered her as my friend. I knew she was having health issues as well as myself, and I only just now was able to find where she had passed away. I hope it was a peaceful transition when she left this world. I'll miss you, my friend. We'll meet one day up yonder.....R.I.P. my friend 💕💕

“ There is not enough room on the internet to share my memories of Debbie. She was the first friend I made when I moved to Hot Springs in 1968. I'll always remember her long red hair that I loved so much, and the way Aggie always fixed it for her before school, her beautiful laugh, her love of the race track, and especially her love of her family, Harold, Aggie, Russ, and her children.

Aggie, I can only imagine how devastated you are, I know Debbie was your world, but now she finally has the peace she had searched for so long.
