“ I always wanted to be around Uncle Harold and aunt Norma more than I ever was.
They were always smiling and easily pleased it seemed.
Before they were married, Uncle Harold did spend some time living with us for a briefly and worked as a carpenter in a nearby neighborhood that was being built out.
Just another reason I love woodworking today.
I just thought the world of Aunt Norma, as she was a beautiful woman with a beautiful heart to match her physical qualities.
Wonderfully, that never changed.
The last time I saw them was about 25 years ago when they came through Baytown, Texas headed to Mexico to build houses for humanity.
They had not changed a bit from the two people I had loved so much from when I was a kid.
I'm sure Aunt Norma will rest in peace as that is just her style.
Sending big hugs and much love to her immediate family and friends.
Sincerely,
Collins Ganson
