“ Remembering Dick, I have just a few. Wednesday Bible study at Faith with his King James Bible and our brief chats Sunday mornings at church. Visit to his home when his health was declining and one good visit at nursing home where we chatted and prayed together. Most of all each year at Veterans Day Sunday the pastor would have each of the Armed Services stand and there would only be three former Marines standing, Bob Lasher, Dick Mawhinney, and myself, we would look around and smile at each other. When this time comes around again, Bob is in nursing home recovering from a stroke, Dick is now with Jesus, so I will stand alone at Faith and remember my two Marine buddies.

“ I was so blessed to have possibly the best grandfather to ever grace this Earth. He taught me how to play soccer and wished I would play softball because I was his athlete. He even tried to get me to play football because nobody else would besides my father. It was one of the many things we would bond over besides our love of sweets. He constantly gave me love and affection even though he held onto the hard outer exterior. He held onto my whole heart and forever will.

“ My heart goes out to all of you. Richard was a friend of mine initially; and, to think I ended thinking of him as the closest person to a brother I will ever have. He had a bottomless heart & giving was #1. He loved his children, w/a heart which encompassed no limits. His love and need to be "home" was shorthand for his love for Carol, who was always there and has been a continuing source of strength w/continued, deep love.

Sheryl, he was my hero as well. My thoughts and prayers are for the whole family. His grandchildren, Tory, Melissa and Amanda was a great source of pride that stayed w/him, also, constantly. I could write a book, but I do have to mention, once again, that his love, pride and peace were with his family.

There are so many enjoyments he shared with me: bike riding (4 wheeling) was the last big fun event I had when he was healthier. The man knew no limits. God Please Bless and Hold Him in Your Arms.
