“ Natalie and myself meet Scott several years ago while playing at the offload park close by. he was a gracious host when I needed something welded up and opened his shop to me and several friends through the years. “ I had the honor of getting to know Scot King through the work his son James does for me. Any time I saw Scot, he was right there helping James, supporting him and doing whatever needed to be done. That alone says a lot about the kind of man he was.

Scot was always kind, respectful, and just an all around good man to be around. The way he carried himself left a strong impression on the people who met him.

It is also clear in the way Scotty and James were raised. They are good men, hardworking, respectful, and the kind of people you are proud to call friends. That speaks volumes about the example Scot set for them.

I'm grateful I had the opportunity to know him, even if just through those moments around work. My thoughts are with the King family. His legacy will always live on through his boys.
