“ It's currently 12:38 right now and I've found myself looking at my father's obituary again, this time I thought I'd leave something here to let all the people who had also left a message thank you. I never knew dad much but I still look up to him too this day, and I'm glad that I can get to see how much people really valued him. To those who have left these vomments and kept the memory of my father alive, thank you.

Thank you Linda, I don't know you but my father did, and my mother says he talked kindly of you, so that makes you family.
